

Vision

All survivors of childhood abuse are supported to have equal access to integrated care, support, and treatment, resources and services.

Trauma informed principles, values and leadership

Choice Empowerment Safety Trust Collaboration

Scottish Government's National Outcomes

We are healthy and active We live in communities that are inclusive, empowered, resilient and safe We grow up loved, safe and respected so that we realise our full potential We respect, protect and fulfil human rights and live free from discrimination We tackle poverty by sharing opportunities, wealth and power more equally

Strategic Outcomes

A Healthy Life

Survivors of abuse enjoy the highest attainable standard of living, health and wellbeing, and family life

Choice & Control

Survivors of abuse are treated with dignity and respect, and are empowered and enabled to access the right support

Safety & Security

Survivors of abuse have access to resources and services which are trauma-informed and have capacity and capability to recognise and respond to needs

Recovery, resilience and wellbeing of survivors of abuse

Improved access to quality services through minimising waiting lists

Public and third sector adopt a more integrated, collaborative approach to supporting survivors of childhood abuse

People and Programme Outcomes

Improved wellbeing and resilience for survivors

Survivors have access to quality services across Scotland

Survivors have access to timely, appropriate services, ideally within 4-6 weeks from first contact

Organisations demonstrate continual improvement based on feedback and learning

Greater collaboration between partners

Outputs, Activities and Indicators

Direct, end-to-end support activities across Scotland including:

Strategic engagement with local context, sharing learning and relationship building.

Development of innovative ways of supporting survivors

Tailored support packages for survivors

Provision of integrated services and resources for survivors available across Scotland

- Survivors report increased wellbeing and resilience
- Improved mental health
- Reduced loneliness and isolation
- Increased physical activity
- A reduction in health risk behaviours
- Improved access to justice, housing, education and employment

- Survivors have a choice of services
- Survivors signposted to other services
- Survivors experience a smooth transition between services
- Survivors report increased access to justice
- Survivors report increased wellbeing and resilience

- Survivors receive services in a timely way
- All survivors able to access appropriate services, regardless of gender, sexuality, ethnicity and disability
- Survivors report increased wellbeing and resilience
- Collaborative working between organisations reduces waiting lists

- Greater evidence base
- Quantitative and qualitative feedback from survivors
- Development of consistent quality standards
- Consistent workforce training, qualifications and accreditation
- Increased knowledge and learning on prevention
- Increased awareness of trauma-informed practice and approaches

- Survivors have a choice of services
- Stronger linkages between services
- Survivors signposted to appropriate services
- Survivors experience a smooth transition between services
- Survivors report increased access to justice
- Survivors report increased wellbeing

Results

Survivors receive enhanced quality of support resulting in better recovery and increased resilience

More people receive appropriate support across Scotland

Greater collaboration between third sector providers and statutory services

Third Sector Input

Staff and Trustees Volunteers Partnership with statutory services Resources (websites, guides etc) Training